

Forum for Security and Democracy is a nonprofit, nonpartisan, independent nongovernment organization stationed in Belgrade.

Since its founding in 2004 and up to this day FSD is recognizable for its bold, open, forethought and responsible ideas and stands concerning the most complex security, foreign policy and domestic issues, especially those pertaining to Serbia's relations with the EU and NATO.

FSD is one of the first organizations in Serbia and the WB region that advocated Euro-Atlantic values and pointed out and explained NATO's role as guarantor of security in Kosovo and the Balkans.

For over a decade FSD has organized and participated in public debates in Serbia and the region with other organizations. We have been recognized for our issuing of public statements on the most important security and democracy issues in Serbia since Day One.

Our magazine Sights and Signs persisted since 2010!

In spite of this we haven't turned out to be the favorites of foreign or domestic donors and sponsors.

FSD hasn't received any form of financial support for quite a long time.

These circumstances offered us the opportunity to demonstrate and prove the driving force and strength of our ideas; which are of paramount importance for the stability, prosperity and integrity of any organization.

Despite lack of financial support which is sometimes very dramatic as it is these days we haven't ceased our activities. Everyone in FSD works on a voluntary basis with the same enthusiasm we've had since Day One.

Now you have before you a newly redesigned FSD website!

We will never give up, but we kindly ask you to support our work so we can continue to better help Serbia navigate modern-day security, foreign, regional and domestic challenges.
